Learning More about Suffixes

A suffix is added to the end of a root which is either a whole word or part of a word – to form a new word as well as alter the way it functions grammatically.

-ise

For example, adding the suffix – dom (meaning a place or state of being) to the end of the word free results in a new word with a new meaning freedom.

-ify

Free-dom

-ate

Learning More about Suffixes

It is important to understand the definitions of suffixes, because they help us to deduce the meanings of any new words that we learn. Think about the different words which can be created through adding the above suffixes.

-ise	-ate	-ify
sterilise	liquidate	magnify
fossilise	activate	glorify

What do you think the definition of each suffix is?
The suffixes –ise -ate -ify are verb suffixes.

-ise

-ify

-ate

Learning More about Suffixes

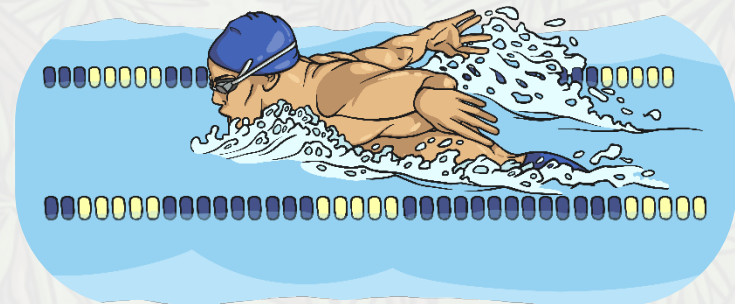

Remember, when we add the suffixes the usual spelling rules apply:

For words ending in 'y' (change the 'y' to 'i' before adding the ending): memory = memorise

Words ending in 'e' (remove the 'e' before adding the ending): simple = simplify

Words ending with a short vowel sound (double the consonant before adding the ending): swim = swimming

Learning More about Suffixes

-ify

You can change nouns and adjectives into verbs by adding the suffix -ify.

humid + ify = humidify

Example:

The ice cube is solid.

I solidify the water by freezing it.

Through adding the suffix -ify we have changed the adjective 'solid' into the verb 'solidify'.

However, sometimes the root word changes before the suffix is added.

peace + ify = pacify

horror + ify = horrify

Spelling Rules for -ify

Many words with the suffix –ify are created simply by adding the –ify suffix to a noun or adjective root word, e.g.

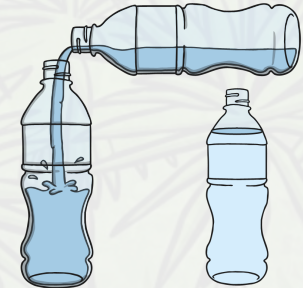

solid + -ify = solidify

However, sometimes we need to remove the ‘e’ from the end of a noun or adjective root word before adding –ify, e.g.

pure – e = pur

pur + -ify = purify

Root words that end in ‘y’ usually remove this letter before adding –ify, e.g.

glory – y = glor

glor + -ify = glorify

Applying the Suffix -ify

Can you use the spelling rules we have just learned to add the suffix -ify to these root words?

purify

notify diversify

solidify

intensify simplify glorify

falsify

Which spelling rule did you have to apply most often?

Learning More about Suffixes

-ate

You can change nouns and adjectives into verbs by adding the suffix -ate.

active + ate = activate

Example:

He was turned away with his invalid ticket.

He tore up his ticket to invalidate it.

Through adding the suffix -ate we have changed the noun 'invalid' into the verb 'invalidate'.

But again, the root word often changes before the suffix is added (this happens a lot with the -ify suffix!)

medical + ate = medicate

pollen + ate = pollinate

Spelling Rules for -ate

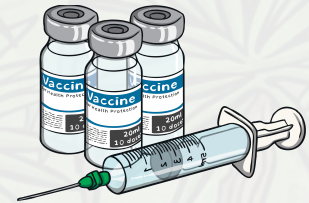

Many words with the suffix –ate are created simply by adding the –ate suffix to a noun or adjective root word, e.g.

carbon+ -ate = carbonate

However, sometimes we need to remove the 'e' from the end of a noun or adjective root word before adding –ate, e.g.

vaccine – e = vaccin vaccin + -ate = vaccinate

To change an –ation noun to an –ate verb, remove the –ation suffix and replace it with –ate, e.g.

hibernation - -ation= hiber hibern + -ate = hibernate

Applying the Suffix -ate

Can you use the spelling rules we have just learned to add the suffix –ate to these root words?

invalidate

hyphenate

alienate

captivate

motivate communicate

elasticate

graduate

Which spelling rule is the trickiest to apply?

Learning More about Suffixes

-ise

You can change nouns and adjectives into verbs by adding the suffix -ise.

Example:

The proper noun needs to begin with a capital letter.

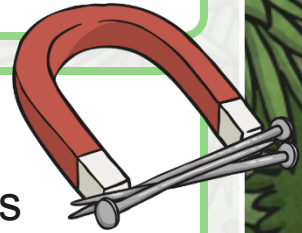

She needs to capitalise the proper noun.

Through adding the suffix -ise we have changed the adjective 'capital' into the verb 'capitalise'.

magnet + ise = magnetise

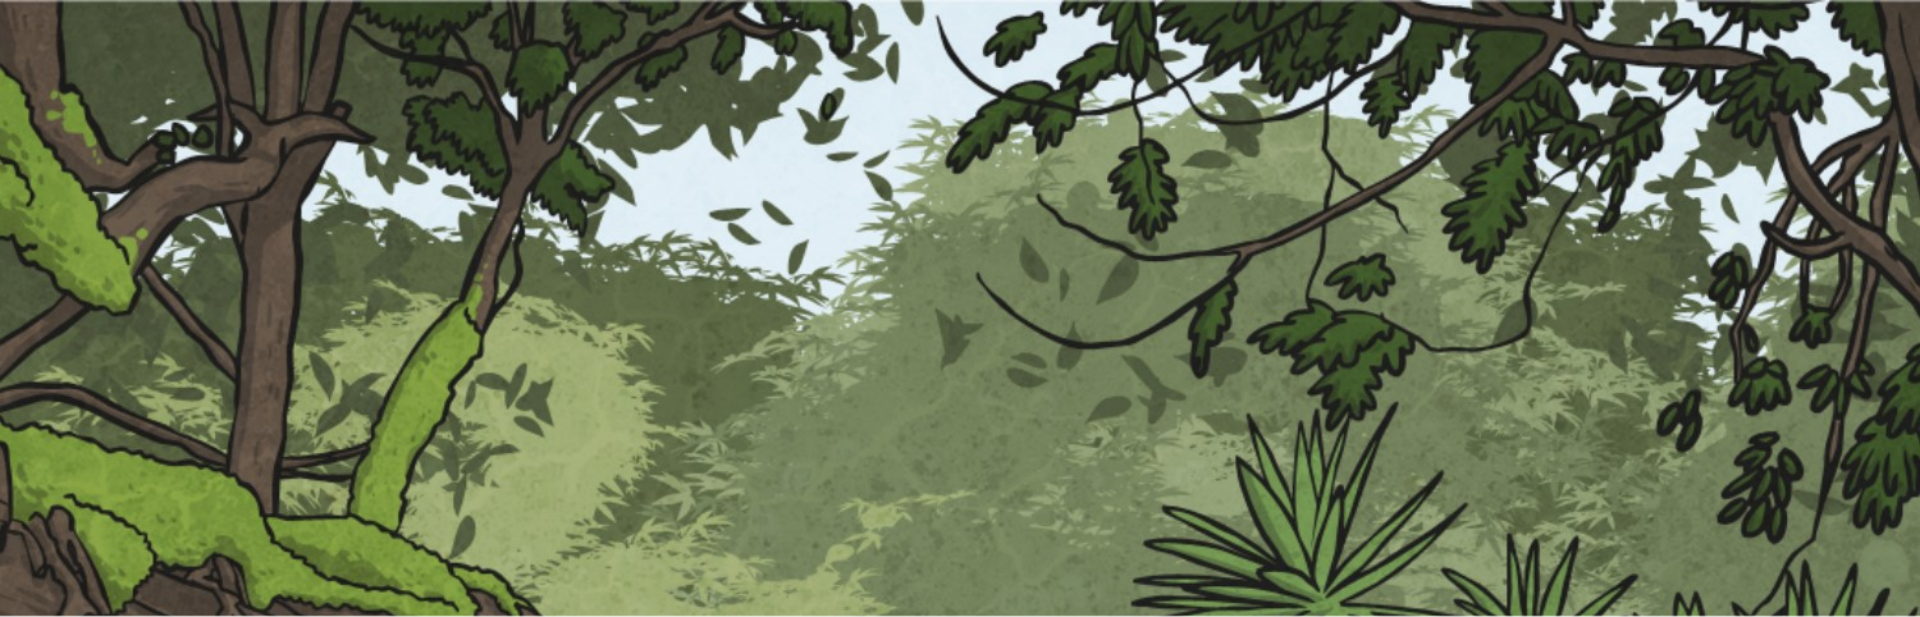

Again, the root sometimes changes before the suffix is added.

hypnotic + ise = hypnotise

It was a hot sunny day and Jack was trying to motivate himself to help his mum decorate his bedroom. He had been nagging his mum for months because he wanted to personalise his room but she kept saying, "These things don't just materialise Jack, you have to put in some effort!"

Jack decided to activate his arms enough to spread red paint onto one wall and white onto the other. After a while, he decided that decorating really wasn't that difficult and if he tried hard enough he could simplify anything!
